Individual Liberties and the Rule of Law

Campbell University School of Law
Raleigh, North Carolina
March 5, 2012

Conveners and Sponsors:
Campbell University School of Law
Wake County Bar Association

10:30 a.m. Welcome
Dean Melissa A. Essary, Campbell Law School (Seminar Room)

10:40 a.m. Introduction to the “Rule of Law” program
Justice Mark Martin, North Carolina Supreme Court

10:45 a.m. “The Bill of Rights: Individual Liberties and the Rule of Law”
Judge Sidney S. Eagles, Jr., Former Chief Judge, North Carolina Court of Appeals

11:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Working Lunch (Students and Attorney Facilitators, Individual Classrooms)
Students will be assigned to specific classrooms and given a worksheet that describes a hypothetical situation involving a violation of one of the rights established in the Bill of Rights. Led by a practicing attorney facilitator, the students will discuss and respond to questions about the situation while having lunch. Thereafter, the students will work with the moderator to create a short “roleplay” in which they will develop the scenario into a brief theatrical scene to be presented during the closing session.
12:30 to 1:50 p.m. Panel Discussion and Roleplays (Seminar Room)

Christie Hinson Norris, UNC School of Government, Moderator

Colon Willoughby, Wake County District Attorney (4th Amendment)

Judge Donna Stroud, North Carolina Court of Appeals (8th Amendment)

Amanda Martin, attorney at Stevens Martin Vaughn & Tadych, PLLC (1st Amendment)

During this period the students, led by moderator Christie Hinson, will perform their skits for the group. In the midst of these presentations, the students will hear from three panelists who will provide their unique perspectives on how the 1st, 4th, and 8th Amendments remain an important part of everyday life in Wake County in the 21st Century.

2:00 p.m. – Closing Remarks and Dismissal

Theodore Edwards, President of the Wake County Bar Association
